

Editor's Note: Call for Special Issues

We would like to thank you all for your continued interest in the Journal of Military and Strategic Studies.

As you no doubt are aware, the Journal endeavors to publish at least one special issue per year on topics or issues that we believe will be of interest to our readers. At present, however, we do not have any special issues in our publication pipeline.

Hence, we encourage anyone who may have either a set of workshop papers or an idea for a special issue to consider the Journal as a possible outlet. We are particularly interested in one or more special issues for our early or late fall 2018 issues, or for our winter 2019 issue.

We strongly encourage anyone who will be putting on a workshop in the coming months who are interested in having the workshop papers published to consider the Journal as a possible outlet for publishing the presented papers. Depending on the state of the papers presented, we can publish a series of workshop papers in fairly short order. As an added incentive we will be able to offer an honorarium to the authors of each paper, and we are willing to consider requests for a limited amount of funding support towards the costs of putting on a workshop.

Please feel free to contact us if you have any questions, at tterriff@ucalgary.ca

Terry Terriff